

Field Service

Trew's skilled field service technicians can help with emergency response and maintenance activities

Finding, training and retaining maintenance staff is a challenge facing many DCs, manufacturing and fulfillment operations, especially as scheduled maintenance windows and the talent pool seem to continually shrink. Trew's experienced staff of field service technicians become an extension of your team by helping with preventative maintenance, augmenting and training inexperienced staff by providing supervisory support or altogether offloading maintenance with a resident based on site.

Features & Benefits:

- Skilled technicians help optimize planned downtime and maintenance budgets
- Technicians are training on Trew products and most are multi-talented to help with other needs
- Options are limitless to flex as your needs change: augment your existing staff, obtain supervisory support to coach inexperienced team members, receive help with pre-scheduled maintenance or offload maintenance entirely
- In house staff receive valuable training from skilled field service technicians
- 24x7 emergency support to help in situations when you need it most
- Access to Trew engineering, parts, modifications, technical support and other valuable resources
- Eliminate or minimize costs to hire, train and retain skilled technicians in house
